

Armed Schwaberry

[!\[\]\(919a2cb85b99741a73c0c31a427236a8_img.jpg\) Send to Kindle](#)

Discerning people grow increasingly unhappy about the dark clouds spanning the horizon. They feel profoundly betrayed by lying government personnel who swear up, down, and sideways to guard their interests, only to repeatedly slip a dagger between their ribs once “elected” (these days, a questionable status at best).

Thus, readers tend to ask me questions and post observations reflecting their anger, resentment, and displeasure.

The “Stakeholder Capitalism” Swindle

Question: “Klaus Schwab explained that multi-national corporations will replace governments of the peoples. It’s a pretty accurate prediction if has already happened. Has it?”

Answer: Yes, it has.

Note that Schwab’s statements are consistent with certain other statements made by his ideological forebears. For example:

Richard von Coudenhove-Kalergi (Founder-in-spirit of the EU):
“Today’s races and classes [and nations] will gradually disappear ... The Eurasian-Negroid race of the future will replace the diversity of peoples with a diversity of individuals.”

The political-economic aspect of these predictions is misleadingly called “corporate-government partnership” or “private-public partnership”. Obviously, where large corporations are virtually all “multinational”, a multinational government is implied. In short, it’s all about “global governance”.

These prophecies are being realized largely because miscreants like Schwab and Kalergi have engineered it over the last century and more, assuring the public that this is the natural order of things. But in reality, the corporate-government private-public “partnership” is not an honest partnership at all.

Under the rules of “stakeholder capitalism”, only stakeholders have a say in how things are run, and the only stakes that matter are money and power. Sadly, the American majority has been swindled out of its “stake” at the exponential rate of compound interest, and the only exceptions are enjoyed by those utterly devoid of loyalty to their people, their nations, and God.

Granted, the poor and the powerless are told that their “stake” is simply that of the consumer, the end-user of that which is somehow produced by “the elite” without a drop of their own sweat. “You, the public, are crucial!” we are glibly assured. “You’re what it’s all about! Just let government and industry, your fellow stakeholders in the world economy, see to your bovine needs, and everything will be just fine!”

Unfortunately, listening to this pap has now led us into a morass of censorship, odious debt, fraudulent presidential elections, double-digit inflation (let the truth be told), open borders, toxic “vaccines”, genocidal mass Third-World migration to all and only White nations, and the preferential lavishing of the goodies allegedly produced for Americans on foreign invaders who make no secret of despising us and intending to displace us.

This is why the US White majority is now viewed as powerless by everyone who knows the score. We’re a joke to them ... an obsolete herd of tax-cattle, apathetic fools easily deceived and abused at every turn, lacking the courage to revolt.

In case of doubt, just turn on your television.

<https://chrislangan.substack.com/p/armed-schwabbery>